Trends in Ice Cream Novelties

Giving consumers guiltless joy needs to be the primary goal of ice cream and frozen novelty innovations.

Stephanie Mattucci, CFS
Director, Mintel
October 2022
Mintel is the expert in what consumers want and why

As the world’s leading market intelligence agency, our analysis of consumers, markets, new products and competitive landscapes provides a unique perspective on global and local economies. Since 1972, our predictive analytics and expert recommendations have enabled our clients to make better business decisions faster.

Our purpose is to help businesses and people grow.
Why Mintel?

Expert-led approach
- Independent proprietary data
- 300+ analysts
- Continuous development of data, partners and technologies

Global footprint
- 35 markets with consumer data
- Product launches from 86 markets
- 30,000 field evaluators in 130 markets

Diverse and experienced
- Providing intelligence for 48 years
- More than 1,000 employees across 15 offices
- 48 nationalities speaking 37 languages

Better, more relevant answers
Support to help you grow
Experience you can rely on
It’s been a tough decade…and we’re only two years in

In early 2022, many consumers felt a sense of normality as COVID-19 restrictions started to ease.

Yet pandemic anxiety has been replaced by new anxieties, be it the increasing cost of living or the conflict between Russia and Ukraine.
Once again, comforting food, such as indulgent ice cream desserts and novelties, is sure to be popular among consumers looking to manage their stress levels.

TO COPE WITH STRESS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Percentage</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>35%</td>
<td>of US consumers* eat comforting foods to relieve stress</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

TO BOOST MOOD

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Percentage</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>54%</td>
<td>of US consumers agree that enjoying indulgent treats can benefit your overall wellbeing (eg happiness, mood)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

BUT CONSUMERS FEEL GUILT

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Percentage</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>53%</td>
<td>of US consumers agree eating indulgent food sometimes makes them feel guilty</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

*Base: US 1,000 internet users aged 18+, 2,000 internet users aged 18+

Source: Kantar Profiles, August 2021, December 2021
Let’s take away the guilt of guilty pleasures

Reassure consumers about their top concerns
Address the issues consumers are worried about. This could be proving value to address money troubles, using sustainable ingredients to address environmental worries, or by offering better-for-you options to address health concerns.

Offer comfort through the familiar
As inflation hits record highs, ice cream is well positioned to offer comfort food at an affordable price. Try nostalgic flavors, familiar inclusions and convenient formats.

Prove value through quality
Alleviate the guilt consumers may have with buying or eating a treat. Communicate taste and quality in order to prove value.

Spark adventure with new sensations
Offer consumers affordable joy. Play with sensory attributes to deliver safe excitement. Flavor, color, texture and even aroma are all at play.
REASSURE CONSUMERS AND BRING COMFORT
Ice cream brands must adapt to counter inflation concerns

The stress and uncertainty of an economic crisis leads to an uptake in eating comfort foods such as ice cream and frozen novelties. However, rising inflation means it is ever more crucial to offer consumers value for money.

Consumers will continue to seek out small indulgences in the face of a global economic crisis that has already led to cost of living issues. In some markets, such as the US and UK, a recession is possible due to rising inflation.

IN AUGUST 2022

73% of US consumers agreed they had been affected by increasing food and drink prices in the past three months

Base: US 1,000 internet users aged 18+
Source: Kantar Profiles/Mintel, August 2022
Offer consumers proof that ice cream is a worthy treat

Consumers are known to seek simpler flavors during a recession, highlighting the opportunity in the short term for ice cream brands to offer simple, nostalgic flavors.

Ice creams featuring a premium positioning often highlight strong indulgence cues to justify clear value. These can relate to texture (e.g. dense/rich), processing method, ingredients or provenance.

Despite inflationary conditions, the largest portion of frozen treat shoppers select premium as a concept that would motivate more purchases of frozen treats.

35% of US consumers would be motivated to buy more frozen treats from a retail store if they were premium (e.g. artisanal ingredients, small batch production)

Base: 1,000 internet users aged 18+ who purchase frozen treats

Source: Kantar Profiles/Mintel, December 2021
2022: the year of the familiar

Only 24% of US adults expect to be regularly trying different foods in 2022.

US: COVID-19 changes to food and drink habits, trying different foods, by generation, 2021

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>% of consumers</th>
<th>Generation Z</th>
<th>Millennials</th>
<th>Generation X</th>
<th>Baby Boomers</th>
<th>World War II/Swing Generation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I tried different foods regularly before the pandemic</td>
<td>34%</td>
<td>39%</td>
<td>38%</td>
<td>31%</td>
<td>26%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I regularly try different foods now</td>
<td>48%</td>
<td>45%</td>
<td>38%</td>
<td>38%</td>
<td>26%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I expect to be trying different foods one year from now</td>
<td>26%</td>
<td>21%</td>
<td>27%</td>
<td>17%</td>
<td>17%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I have never tried different foods and don’t expect to in the future</td>
<td>17%</td>
<td>10%</td>
<td>17%</td>
<td>25%</td>
<td>34%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Base: US: 2,000 internet users aged 18+

Source: Kantar Profiles/Mintel, March 2021
Brands should not only look for flavors that can reassure consumers, but also flavors that consumers can confidently use for multiple occasions.

Why simple flavors? New flavors can be risky when money is tight

- THINK BUDGET-FRIENDLY
  - 46% of US consumers don’t try new flavors because it’s too expensive

- MAKE TRIAL EASY
  - 30% of US consumers don’t try new flavors because they don’t want to commit to a large portion

- OFFER A BRIDGE TO THE FAMILIAR
  - 41% of US consumers are interested in trying new flavors that are similar to their favorites

Base: US: 2,000 internet users aged 18+
Source: Kantar Profiles/Mintel, October 2020

Read on mintel.com
Now is the time to push flavors that offer value

Value will be essential for many US consumers as we move through this next phase of the pandemic, especially as economic experts predict inflation and food companies consider price increases.

Already, brands are cutting back and prioritizing core product lines to cope with labor shortages and supply chain issues. However, this could be an opportune time to refocus on flavors that can offer consumers the most value when shopping for food and drink products.

Even back in November 2020, 34% of US adults said higher grocery bills were the top factor to negatively affect their finances during the pandemic. With inflation higher than it has been in the past 10 years, there will be a need to provide consumers with products that can help stretch their budgets.

*Base: US: 2,000 internet users aged 18+
Source: Kantar Profiles/Mintel, November 2020*
Nostalgia marketing came to the fore during the Great Recession in 2011. Facing uncertainty, consumers pine for reminders of a simpler time.

Given that consumers associate ice cream with childhood, ice cream is poised to tap into the need for nostalgia during the unsettling 2020s.

Conjure up feelings of nostalgia by bringing back throw-back products

Consumers want to be reminded of home, heart and heritage

Base: 1,961 internet users aged 18+ who have eaten desserts or candy in the past three months

Source: Lightspeed/Mintel, April 2021
Nostalgic ice cream offers consumers comfort during unsettling times

Nostalgic flavors can start in a single category and move into an array of other spaces as consumers enjoy foods that remind them of their pasts, families and communities.

Be creative in how to use nostalgia in product innovation and marketing by adding a nostalgic twist to a modern product, or linking ice cream to nostalgic occasions.

US: Dessert and confections attitudes, 2022

- 38% I am more likely to try new dessert flavors from brands I typically buy
- 37% I enjoy desserts that are a twist on the familiar
- 30% I am eating premium desserts at home instead of going out for dessert
- 29% I am willing to try a new dessert or candy if it's better-for-you, even if it has less desirable texture

Base: 1,965 internet users aged 18+ who have eaten desserts or candy in the past three months

Source: Kantar Profiles/Mintel, April 2022
Comfort flavor: birthday cake

The feel-good flavor evokes family and childhood. In the US, 80% of desserts or candy consumers have tried or are interested in birthday cake flavored desserts or candy.

Birthday cake inclusions

Birthday Cake Ice Cream is described as vanilla frosting-flavored ice cream swirled with cake piece and candy sprinkle (US).

“Party like it's your birthday”

Birthday Cake Greek Yogurt Bars is a low fat, creamy birthday cake flavored frozen Greek yogurt with rainbow sprinkles and cake dough. Ridiculously creamy guarantee (US).

Birthday cake mochi treats

Birthday Cake Cookie Dough with Ice Cream Soul is a mochi-inspired ice cream treat made with premium vanilla ice cream wrapped in sprinkles cookie dough (UK).
Comfort flavor: S’mores

S’mores harken back to childhood rituals; in this era of unease, they have become the next big flavor across confectionery and sweet categories.

Epically awesome ice cream
Campfire S’mores Awesome Ice Cream is described as the creamiest vanilla marshmallow ice cream with chocolate squares and a graham marshmallow swirl (US).

S’mores with less mess
S’mores Ice Cream Cones is described as white marshmallow flavor ice cream and light brown biscuit flavor ice cream with a chocolate flavor sauce (UK).

For summer entertaining all year
S’mores Iced Cream Cake with a mascarpone semifreddo cream, salted caramel sauce and marshmallows, topped with mallow meringue that just needs to be finished under the grill, to savor the magic of the campfire (UK).
Comfort flavor: Cereal + cereal milk

Cereal milk, especially ones derived from childhood favorites, is found in ice cream and other sweets. The nostalgic aroma is even found in cereal-scented candles.

Milk Bar's cereal milk ice cream Cereal Milk Ice Cream is inspired by Christina Tosi’s iconic cereal milk desserts at Momofuku Milk Bar. It is described as an ice cream with cereal milk and cornflake crunch that is said to taste like the bottom of the cereal bowl (US).

Cocoa Pebbles' launch for Pebble's 50th birthday Cereal Milk Chocolate Light Ice Cream Swirled with Chocolatey Bedrock Bits

"I'm a sucker for ice cream, even if the character reference is dated to my kids. I used to watch it and it makes me a little nostalgic." - Female, Midwest, 35-54

"Trashy good" Cornflake Crunch Ice Cream is a cereal milk ice cream with cornflake cookies (US).
Can nostalgia go too far?

The Miller High Life Ice Cream Dive Bars are designed to taste like a dive bar

According to CNN, Miller High Life has partnered with Tipsy Scoop, an alcohol-infused ice cream maker, to create an ice cream flavor that tastes like a dive bar.

“The treat features premium ice cream infused with High Life beer and other dive bar staples — including peanuts, a traditional bar snack; tobacco smoke flavoring, to replicate dive bar smell; caramel, because dive bars have sticky floors; carbonated candy, to replicate beer fizz; and dark chocolate, which is similar in color to dark wood and dim lighting.”

37% of US consumers who have eaten desserts or candy in the past 3 months agree that they enjoy desserts that are a twist on the familiar

Base: 1,965 internet users aged 18+ who have eaten desserts or candy in the past three months
Source: Kantar Profiles/Mintel, April 2022
As a marketing theme, space will become less whimsical and more tangible. Space has long been a popular theme for marketers. But this has typically involved whimsical limited editions and sci-fi-style branding; stars, aliens and spaceships make for instantly-identifiable and kid-friendly designs, after all.

In the coming years, space will become more tangible than the mythical and magical flavor and color inspirations that have appealed to consumers looking for escapes from the reality of life on Earth.
Space will symbolize hope amid the intensifying crises on Earth

Space is an intriguing point of inspiration as shown by these 2022 launches. But innovation will also be shaped by space tech and consumers’ growing veneration of space. The new space race will make space a signal of international cooperation. Led by upcoming missions from the US and China, humans will get new familiarity with the cosmos.

Space inspires mystery ‘Creation’
Coca-Cola Starlight Space Flavored Beverage was the first new flavour from Coca-Cola’s Creations line. Starlight was inspired by ‘the magic and mystery of the cosmos.’ The company hopes the Creations drinks will revitalise appeal to Gen Z.

Papa Johns says space is like chorizo
Papa Johns Chorizo Pizza is said to be ‘the world’s first space-inspired pizza.’ Papa Johns shared how chorizo is similar to space, according to Dr. Chris Welch, the former vice president of the International Aeronautical Federation.

Starburst sends messages into space
Starburst invited TikTok users to send a question into space, with the winning entries sent via SpaceSpeak technology, which transmits messages into deepest space. The #beamitupstarburst hashtag gained over 60 million views on TikTok.
Bring it back to Earth with trendy upcycled ingredients

While consumers may be concerned about the environment, it’s not a driving factor for purchase. Brands must engage them with sustainability in a way that is fun and positive. Upcycled ingredients are part of the fight against food waste, transforming foods from trash to value-added products. Already 56% of Canadians are concerned about food waste when purchasing food and drinks in stores.

Surplus bananas
Banana Vanilla Ice Cream from Denmark is said to be made with surplus bananas to minimize food waste. The product features an icon entitled 'begræns madspild', meaning 'limit food waste'. The packaging states 'less waste, more taste'.

Sourdough from Amass
Danish ice cream Hansen Flødeis, Amass & Jalm&B Sourdough Ice Cream Stick is said to have been made in collaboration between Hansens's Flødeis, restaurant Amass and the bread producer Jalm&B.

Upcycled Dark Chocolate Brownie Mix
US ice cream brand Salt & Straw partnered with upcycled ingredient supplier Renewal Mill to create a vegan ice cream incorporating the latter’s upcycled dark chocolate brownie mix.
SPARK ADVENTURE WITH NEW SENSATIONS

Unexpected sensations in desserts are helping consumers approach life with a sense of wonder and lighthearted delight, in line with Mintel's 2022 Global Consumer Trend Enjoyment Everywhere.
There are many ways ice cream novelties can make consumers "feel good"

- Novel textures and formats
- Exciting flavors
- Better-for-you ingredients
- Playful colors and aroma

Read on mintel.com
Make ice cream an unguilty pleasure by delivering on value and joy

Saving money is not worth it if consumers feel it may risk or diminish the indulgent experiences they have grown to expect in efforts to save.

This supports the notion that even as prices soar across categories, consumers are more likely to adopt a “less-but-better” approach to treating, or skip the purchase entirely, rather than trade down to economy concepts.

Miniature ice creams suitable for snackable treats or on-the-go consumption must deliver pleasure to consumers, but also good value, as low price is the second most important influence on purchase - after flavor - in the US.

OF US ICE CREAM CONSUMERS

23%

are buying ice cream more frequently because they are at home more often, treating themselves and snacking on it more

Base: 431 internet users aged 18+ who are purchasing frozen treats more often than a year ago

Source: Lightspeed/Mintel, Feb 2021
Snackable ice cream novelties can be unguility pleasures

From bite-sized pieces to mini cones, cups and bars, snackable treat formats have been a staple of category innovation in recent years - accelerated by the pandemic.
Snackable formants will make flavor experimentation feel less risky, especially for spicy flavors

Ice cream launches with a spicy flavor are niche, but share of launches is growing globally, albeit from a small base. Consumer interest highlights the opportunity for innovation in this space; 34% of German Millennials who consume ice cream are interested in ice cream with spicy flavors (vs 27% of all ice cream consumers).

Millennials are more likely than the average adult to enjoy breaking the rules when it comes to what they eat/drink (eg combining unexpected flavours). They are also an ideal target demographic; US Millennials are more likely to be weekly eaters of ice cream than other generations (39% vs 34% of all adults).
There is an opportunity to combine sweetness with hot spice, a successful strategy in recent confectionery launches.

This appeals to Millennials, who have more interest in chilli flavors in desserts/confectionery than other age groups.

Brands should also take inspiration from foodservice with the hot honey flavor, which is trending among dips/sauces and on proteins -- and appeals to Millennials.

Great Value Mango Habanero in Coconut Ice Cream has a heat meter to indicate spice level

Mango Chile Mexican Style Mini Ice-Pops is in a refreshing mini format
Look at sweet spices beyond cinnamon

Unlike hot spices, sweet spices are perhaps a more natural pairing with ice cream due to their sweetness. The use of cinnamon as an ingredient in ice cream has remained steady at around 2% of global launches for the past five years.

The use of less-common spices such as cloves, nutmeg and cardamom is on the rise, albeit from a small base. Sweet spices such as cardamom and nutmeg are popular in Middle Eastern cuisine. These emerging flavors in ice cream are likely to appeal to Millennials, as this group tends to adopt new flavor trends readily.

Base: US: 1,904 internet users aged 18+ who have eaten dairy or dairy alternatives in the past three

Source: Kantar Profiles/Mintel, June 2021
These younger consumers seek a greater range of other textures, especially those related to their segment of choice, candy (caramel, brittle, chocolate).

They are also more than twice as likely as older generation to be open to gelled/jelly textures, which can be found in fruit jellies popular in Asian cuisine and products such as boba teas, which have remained trendy with Gen Z.
Candy inclusions are safe yet exciting

A Smarties Pop-Up
Vanilla Ice Cream Sticks with Smarties. According to the manufacturer, it is an appropriate serving size specially developed for children (Netherlands).

This one will melt in your hands
Salted Caramel Ice Cream Chills is comprises salted caramel ice cream with M&M’s minis, milk chocolate coating and caramel chunks (Belgium).

Marshmallow dreams
Vanilla Ice Cream Cone with Marshmallows is a vanilla flavored ice cream with pastel colored marshmallows (Denmark).
Brands should also use texture to add playfulness, especially for younger consumers. To date, brands have focused on improving the texture of non-dairy ice cream to better mimic the texture of dairy ice cream.

- Canadian Gen Z consumers are more likely than other age groups to seek unique textures in ice cream.
- In the US, Gen Z consumers show a higher preference than other age groups for fluffy or chewy textures in desserts.

Trader Joe’s Cold Brew Coffee and Boba Non-Dairy Ice Cream (US)

Bubble Tea Flavored Ice Stick is silky smooth, with mellow, rich tea + milk aromas (China)
From snack bar to frozen treat bar
Dark Chocolate Almond Sea Salt & Nut Frozen Treat Bar is a plant based product, described as a creamy almond bar made with ingredients that can be seen and pronounced. Features almonds as the number one ingredient (US).

Cereal nostalgia for new textures
Strawberry Crisp Sorbet Bars are made with real fruit and are described as a vegan flavor bombs (US).

A variety of snacking and dessert categories received a boost from elevated spend on at-home eating, and bakery and co-branded fall in the top half of flavors that would motivate greater purchase of frozen treats.

In addition to the benefit of trending flavors, co-branding with private label bakery products or national brands found in the aisle can present more product/messaging placement opportunities.
Netflix's "Is it Cake?" challenge can move to ice cream

Look to other categories for inspiration for new shapes, textures, and formats to surprise and delight consumers.

Strawberries or ice cream?
Sweet Strawberry Filled Ice Cream is made with fresh strawberries, and instantly IQF frozen. It is said to be sour, sweet, delicious, refreshing and icy (China).

Waffles or ice cream?
Waffle On Ice Cream is described as a sweet slab loaded with caramelized sugar pieces jammed between two waffle biscuits and dipped in caramel white chocolate with hazelnuts and cookie crumb (Australia).

Spaghetti or ice cream?
Spaghetti Ice Cream with Cream, Strawberry Sauce & White Chocolate is a bourbon-vanilla ice cream with whipped cream, garnished with strawberry sauce and grated white chocolate is made with an Italian recipe (Germany).
Colorful paletas bring joy with fruit-based formulations

When consumers do want a healthy option for frozen treats, they are most likely to be looking for lower sugar options and fruit flavors.

These two attributes may have even greater leverage together, including labeling sugar as natural and from fruit.

Watermelon Flavored Organic Ice Pops
Coconut and Strawberry Ice Cream

Read on mintel.com
Could color changing ice cream be next?

In Spain, Manuel Linares, a chef and physicist invited an ice cream that changes colors when you lick it.

The invention dates back to 2014 and has been featured in various publications across Europe and in People magazine in the US.
What does ice cream smell like?

Salt & Straw has launched a line of “culinary perfumes” to enhance the sensory experience of eating ice cream by adding new aromas - and evoking emotion in new ways. The edible scents were created in coordination with Portland perfumery Imaginary Authors. The companies created three scents that are designed to enhance the ice cream eating experience.

A Cloud of Cocoa
A Cloud of Cocoa: “Like stepping into the back kitchen of your favorite old-world bakery. Rich and robust, combining a luxurious smoky warmth with malty cocoa.”

A Swoon of Citrus
A Swoon of Citrus: “A bright invitation to sun-soaked days. Both intense and subtle, energizingly juicy, tart citrus is balanced by an herbal nuance.”

A Plume of Blooms
A Plume of Blooms: “Playful, yet enchantingly alluring. Honeysuckle and jasmine intertwine, evoking a euphoric spell of untamed blossoms in late spring.

Source: Salt & Straw
Use different senses to evoke emotions

Mintel’s Sense of the Intense Trend highlights how sensory experiences can provide brands and products with deeper meaning, and throughout the pandemic we’ve seen consumers develop a deeper desire to feel connected to multi-sensory experiences.

Ice cream is already a joyful experience, and an edible perfume allows consumers to enhance a simple pleasure. While going out for ice cream is already a common summer ritual, this provides a playful experience for those who choose to eat ice cream at home.

54% of US consumers agree that enjoying indulgent treats can benefit your overall wellbeing (eg happiness, mood)

Base: 2,000 internet users aged 18+
Source: Kantar Profiles/Mintel, December 2021
Ice cream is well known for being an indulgence and a mood-booster, but brands are finding new ways to reinforce its treat appeal.

Indulgence, flavor innovation and exciting snacking formats are dominating the global ice cream landscape. Ice cream are also tapping into nostalgia through flavor and through category-blurring inclusions and formats.
Offer comfort through the familiar

As inflation hits record highs, ice cream is well positioned to offer comfort food at an affordable price. Try nostalgic flavors, familiar inclusions and convenient formats.

Spark adventure with new sensations

Offer consumers affordable joy. Play with sensory attributes to deliver safe excitement. Flavor, color, texture and even aroma are all at play.

Reassure consumers about their top concerns

Address the issues consumers are worried about. This could be proving value to address money troubles, using sustainable ingredients to address environmental worries, or by offering better-for-you options to address health concerns.

Prove value to tackle guilt

Alleviate the guilt, especially by communicate taste and quality to prove value.
Meet the Expert

Stephanie Mattucci, CFS
Director, MFD/Purchase Intelligence
smattucci@mintel.com

The world’s leading market intelligence agency
Our expert analysis of the highest quality data and market research will help you grow your business.